MARKET REVIEW

Stocks got off to a very strong start in the quarter but shifted into correction mode in early February and stayed there on concerns over inflation, trade, and large technology stocks. The S&P 500® Index closed the quarter down 0.76%. Growth stocks outperformed value stocks, and small stocks slightly outperformed their larger counterparts. Developed foreign markets, represented by the MSCI EAFE® Index, were down 1.53%, and emerging markets, as measured by the MSCI Emerging Markets Index, were up 1.42%. Equity volatility, represented by the CBOE Volatility Index (VIX®), staged a pickup, which was expected coming off of 2017's exceptionally low levels. On the fixed-income front, the Bloomberg Barclays U.S. Aggregate Bond Index fell 1.46%. The 10-year U.S. Treasury yield rose during the quarter from 2.40% to 2.74%, which pressured many fixed-income issues and bond proxies in the equity market.

PERFORMANCE

The Fund (Class I) returned 6.00% for the quarter, outperforming the -0.08% return of the Russell 2000® Index. The outperformance was primarily driven by strong stock selection in the technology and producer durables sectors, and was offset slightly by weak stock selection in the consumer discretionary sector.

Autohome and Abaxis were the biggest contributors to performance during the quarter.

- > Autohome reported strong fourth-quarter earnings, with revenue growth in excess of 30% and profit margins higher than a year earlier. The China-based car sales website continues to benefit from the secular shift of ad revenues to online media. Given Autohome's strong competitive positioning, improved capital allocation discipline, and expected long-term growth of the Chinese car market, we remain owners.
- > Abaxis shares rose in the last quarter following a weak 2017. The company, which provides blood analyzers to the medical and veterinary markets, saw a surge in revenue growth after previously experiencing benign-to-falling performance. New product releases due to the previous increase in R&D and a ramp up in the sales force have helped improve results and should bode well for future growth.

Artisan Partners Asset Management and WABCO Holdings were the biggest detractors during the quarter.

- > Artisan Partners is experiencing net outflows due to poor performance among some of its investment strategies. Additionally, other strategies with favorable performance are not accepting new clients or are too small to impact total assets. The general appetite for passive investment vehicles is also a headwind. We believe that, over time, the company's unique business model—built on developing autonomous investment teams—will attract skilled professionals and enable Artisan to develop successful new teams. We also like the company's practice of distributing net income to shareholders.

- > While commercial vehicle parts manufacturer WABCO's fourth-quarter results were very good, guidance for 2018 was not as high as some investors had expected. This, coupled with a valuation that was on the expensive side, has resulted in near-term weakness in the share price. However, the company's competitive position remains intact, and many tailwinds remain for WABCO to continue to outgrow global commercial truck production by increasing its onboard content per vehicle. As a result, we remain owners of the business.

PORTFOLIO CHANGES

We purchased Moelis & Co. and Rightmove in the quarter, and made no complete sales.

- > Global investment bank Moelis & Co. (MC) provides financial advisory, restructuring, and capital-raising services. MC's founders have focused on hiring high-performing managing directors and cultivating a distinct firm culture and reputation, which has allowed the company to quickly take market share and climb the M&A league tables. While other firms could try to copy this model, successful execution is far from certain.
- > Rightmove is the leading website for residential properties for sale or rent in the U.K. The company has established a strong network effect as U.K. home buyers have shifted their home-purchasing behavior. This has given Rightmove considerable pricing power and margin expansion opportunities. The company has had double-digit revenue growth over the past five years, its balance sheet is clean, and management has allocated free cash flow in a prudent manner.

OUTLOOK

We want to underscore that market corrections, while unpredictable, sharp, and painful, are necessary to remove excessive speculation and to shake out weak stockholders. We still believe that businesses will be growing their earnings over the next couple of years and that the market will ultimately reward this growth with positive returns in the mid-to-high single-digit range. The shape of the yield curve is certainly worth monitoring over the next year or two, and we would like to see it steepen. As always, we remain focused on investing in high-quality businesses that we believe offer a sustainable competitive edge.
